Tara Pringle Jefferson

BLOOM HOW YOU MUST: A Black Woman's Guide to Self-Care, by Tara Pringle Jefferson, will put Black women at the forefront of the wellness conversation. The title BLOOM HOW YOU MUST comes from a Lucille Clifton poem, "Mulberry Fields," about the enduring legacy of Black People. Tara is the founder of The Self Care Suite, a wellness community for Black women and other women of color.

Self-care is now a multi-billion dollar industry, and it is not a trend or frivolous matter for Black women. It has always been a throughline: Consider Coretta Scott King on girls' trips with fellow activist Betty Shabazz and Myrlie Evers-Williams to take a break from the stress of the civil rights movement. Remember Rosa Parks attending (and leading!) yoga classes in the midst of her Detroit activism. Bloom How You Must will connect the dots in one easy to read, digestible book—part guide/part journal with exercises to put each segment of wellness into practice. Her voice has been featured on New York Magazine/The Cut, Black Enterprise and Essence.

The Fry Pans Aren't Sufficing uses dark humor and surrealism in a collection of short stories, told through a strikingly unique voice, to follow a variety of characters navigating the disorienting worlds of natural disaster, displacement, love, grief, and rebirth across multiple locations, including New Orleans, New York City, Chicago, and Hawaii.

"Beyond the diverse cast of characters, New Orleans itself is a character, often both comforting and maddening for the male protagonists." – Publishers Weekly

THE FORGOTTEN WITCH

Helen Kent never dares to step outside her comfort zone. She lives a lonely, mundane life in the city, grinding through her uninspiring marketing job. That is, until a spontaneous online purchase brings her to Oban, Scotland, where a 500-year-old cottage full of secrets and stories awaits her. After Helen unearths the local legend of a 16th century witch, she discovers a set of mysterious journals in the cottage's library. Thrust into a world of magic she doesn't understand, she soon realizes there are both light and dark forces at work. With the help of a dashing Scottish neighbor and his wise grandfather, Helen discovers the link that connects her to the mysterious events unfolding at the cottage. But when the past collides with the present, she must face her fears and fight for what she believes in—before darkness descends, again.

MISPLACED MAGIC

Working as a journalist in the quiet corners of Maine, Ionna Bellmore receives an estate letter that unravels her reality. A mysterious grandmother, an inherited estate, and a journey to the enchanting landscapes of northern Wales await her. But what she uncovers there fractures her perception of her family, revealing a darkness lying just below the surface. Simultaneously, Kate, a London teenager, flees to her grandmother's house in the quaint Welsh town of Beddgelert. She's there to figure out her future away from the grasp of her controlling mother, but what she finds are forgotten memories and powerful magic lying dormant within her. Bound by the threads of fate and the age-old Welsh myth of the Lady of the Lake, Ionna and Kate's lives intertwine. With the help of Owen, a local farm boy, and Zeke, a charismatic swordsmith, they must unravel their connection to the encroaching evil threatening to wreak chaos on humanity.

We Promised Utopia is a sci-fi epic centered around charismatic idealist Isabel Bari and her development of the Equivalent Carbon Credit (ECC) which ties every element of the global economy to a carbon-based currency.

Witness the rise of a utopian society, its budding growth, and its descent into dystopia.

"A timely, engrossing SF tale with an environmental theme and striking art" that "offers readers just as many reasons to return for the sequel." Kirkus Reviews

"The pacing here is superb and as it takes us through the pages revealing the world, the story and the characters it certainly piques our curiosity to know more." Steven Leitman, GEEKS

A Hippy-Hoppy Toad: It's hard to be a tiny toad minding your own business on a twig. First a bird pecks at him. . . . Then a bee buzzes. . . . Then a dog barks . . . and so on. And each time the toad is surprised by a buzz or a woof (or the toe of a sneaker!), he hops to a new location farther down the road. With fun sounds, clever rhymes, and an irresistible rhythm, this delightful children's book is a Junior Library Guild Selection.

"[Peggy Archer and Anne Wilsdorf] capture both the comedy and peril of the little toad's adventures in this wonderful read-aloud." —The Wall Street Journal

Peggy Archer is also the author of Name that Dog: Puppy Poems from A to Z and Turkey Surprise (translation rights available).
